Client Story: Dylan

MANNERS
an "it's all about KIDS" program

Five-year-old Dylan moved with his family to Tampa Bay four years ago. Shortly after they settled into their new home, Dylan's mother, Julia, received an email about It's All About Kids from the leader of her home school co-op. The message mentioned an upcoming Etiquette and Manners course that was to be offered at Macy's department store in Tampa's University Mall. Julia knew Dylan could benefit from the topics covered in the course and decided to enroll him.

The course turned out to be a perfect complement to Dylan's home schooling. He immediately benefitted from the social interaction with other children, as well as the individual attention he received from the instructor. Julia was pleased to witness children being addressed with respect in the course, instead of being treated like little kids.

Julia had initially wondered if the Etiquette and Manners program would be appropriate for a five-year-old, so she was delighted when she saw Dylan absorb each lesson and apply it easily to his young life. He learned about sharing, playing fair and listening to others. He was also introduced to the importance of being respectful and developed his self-esteem.
